Kuchar, Avarin, Dzhoyan, Chernobukov, Filipovskyi, and others: apartment owners in the elite Taryan Towers are scrubbing information about the origins of their million

Author: Ivan Ivanov | Published: 12 March 2021 | Updated: 12 March 2021

Office representative offices in Taryan Towers belong to companies registered in offshore zones and in the Russian Federation. Photo: Sergei Ilnitsky, AP

Special. Materials of criminal cases of laundering, bribery, corruption, and embezzlement of Russian officials and their relatives, which Russian authorities have been unable to open for years, have been found in the elite residential complex Taryan Towers in Moscow. Apartments in the complex belong to the families of former governors, senators, and members of the State Duma, as well as to people who are wanted by the Investigative Committee of Russia on charges of fraud and money laundering. Some of the owners of the apartments in Taryan Towers are also linked to the Panama Papers and Paradise Papers. The Russian authorities have been unable to open criminal cases against these people for years, because they have been able to hide their ownership of the apartments in Taryan Towers. Now, however, the information about the owners of the apartments in Taryan Towers has been scrubbed from the Internet.

In Commonwealth Development Office Services — one of the companies of Andrei Avarin, former governor of Kaluga Region, who is wanted by the Investigative Committee of Russia on charges of fraud and money laundering — Taryan Towers, 90, 97 square meters, Kaluga Region, Kaluga, Moskovskaya Street, 248, Kaluga Region, Kaluga, Moskovskaya Street, 248, Kaluga Region, Kaluga, Moskovskaya Street, 248

ASSOCIATION
FOR INTERNATIONAL
PROPERTY ATTORNEYS
Volume 1
Number 1